A boy finds himself battling against zombies and monsters with a group of other children after the apocalypse.

Forty-two days ago I was an ordinary kid, living an uneventful life. But now it's total monster zombie chaos and I'm battling beasts on a daily basis. Crazy, right? But I know exactly how to make it through the zombie apocalypse.

Jack Sullivan's ultimate feats of apocalyptic success:
Locate Quint Baker, best friend and inventor
Find and rescue June Del Toro, the coolest girl I know
Defeat Blarg, the biggest, baddest monster in town
Become a zombie-fighting, monster-bashing tornado of cool!

Wish me luck - 'cos I'm gonna need a bunch of it.

A London street urchin briefly teams up with Frankenstein's monster as they track the scientist's progress in his promise to make the monster a female companion.

Billy is a street urchin, pickpocket and petty thief. Mr Creecher is a monstrous giant of a man who terrifies all he meets. Their relationship begins as pure convenience. But a bond swiftly develops between these two misfits as their bloody journey takes them ever northwards on the trail of their target ...Victor Frankenstein.

'Maybe I am the Devil himself?' he snarled. 'I am surely cursed as Satan was cursed, shunned as he was shunned. There can be no heaven for me, on Earth or elsewhere. For me there is only hell.'

When Maya and her classmates are asked to write a creepy story with a winter theme, they come up with some brilliant ideas. Rising floodwaters uncover long-buried bodies and ghostly children take to the ice on a frozen canal. But as each of the stories is read out in class, Maya grows more and more uncomfortable. She features in each of her friends' creepy tales and they start to feel a little too real.

Finally, when a mysterious new girl stands up to read the last story of the day, the light outside dims and it starts to snow. The classroom starts to freeze but everyone is trapped. Can Maya stop the story before the nightmare comes true?
